Murder accused: 'I did a bad thing'

BY JO DEEKS

Email: editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk

A CARER accused of murdering a Haverhill pensioner told a friend that she had "done a bad thing", a court has heard.

Bunthawee Rimmer, 49, did not give any further details while being visited in prison following her arrest and claimed to be unable to remember what had happened.

She has denied the murder of Paul Norfolk, 77, who was found dead in bed at his home in Castle Lane, Haverhill on December 30 last year.

A jury at Ipswich Crown Court heard how Mr Norfolk was lying in a pool of blood, with blood splattered on the wall and ceiling, after being struck on the head with a 16oz claw hammer 12 times as he slept.

Despite the injuries eventually proving fatal, it is believed Mr Norfolk may have lain unconscious for up to 15 hours before his death.

Prosecutor Andrew Jackson described the attack as "deliberate, brutal and sustained."

On Tuesday, the court heard from beauty therapist Rachema Kemp, a friend of Rimmer's who had visited her in prison.

Investigation: police tape off an address in Castle Lane, Haverhill, last December.

Miss Kemp said: "She didn't seem herself. She said she can't remember what happened."

Rimmer, who is following the proceedings through a Thai interpreter, said she had tried to swallow bathroom cleaner because she had "done a bad thing", said Miss Kemp.

She had tried to keep in touch with Rimmer, who could not read or write English.

On more than one occasion Rimmer had contacted her to ask for a massage, because she was tired, in pain and unhappy but had not followed up those requests.

The court earlier heard a statement from legal executive Sarah Furlong, who was asked by Mr Norfolk to amend the terms of his will to exclude his wife Esme, who has dementia and is being cared for in a residential home, from inheriting his house in Castle Lane.

Instead the will was changed in favour of Rimmer, allowing her to inherit the house and much of Mr Norfolk's estate.

Rimmer, whose husband, Geoffrey, died from natural causes had moved in to care for Mrs Norfolk before she moved to a care home.

Ms Furlong said: "He thought the world of this lady and seemed to have a genuine affection for what she was doing."

Care home manager Ann Curley said in a statement read to the court that Mr Norfolk had been very resentful about having to pay for his wife's care.

She said Mrs Norfolk never seemed to resent the presence of Rimmer. Mr Jackson told the jury that there was no dispute about Rimmer having killed Mr Norfolk.

She claimed to be suffering from a type of depression which had impaired her thinking and amounted to manslaughter by reason of diminished responsibility.

When police found the body of Mr Norfolk they also found, huddling in the same bed, Rimmer who had attempted to cut her own throat and swallowed bathroom cleaner and anti-depressant tablets.

Mr Norfolk, a retired foreman, had been best friends with Geoffrey Rimmer, who had worked with him at IFF in Haverhill. Both had travelled to Thailand in the 1990s where Mr Rimmer had met the defendant, who later married him.

Town lines up

BY JO DEEKS

Email: editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk

TEENAGER Issy Gower and paralympian Caroline Maclean will take centre stage as they carry the Olympic Torch through the streets of their home town on Saturday.

Thousands are expected to line the route as the Torch arrives in Haverhill at around 2.40pm and takes around 30 minutes to complete its journey through the town, passing through the hands of 11 bearers.

Issy, 13, a pupil at Linton Village College, will carry the Torch up the High Street, from the Market Square to the Arts Centre.

She was nominated by her mother Shirley, of Arrendene Road, Haverhill, for her role in the family's fundraising campaign, which has so far raised more than £20,000 for the Bone Cancer Research Trust in memory of her sister, Jessica, who died from bone cancer aged 14, in 2010.

Caroline, 37, will be competing for the Team GB wheelchair basketball team in London, her fourth Paralympic Games. She recently visited Kedington Primary School to tell pupils about her role and inspire them to do more physical activity.

The route of the torch through Haverhill starts at Burton End, then follows Camps Road, Market Hill, High Street, Hamlet Road, Mount Road, A143 Ehringhausen Way, Lord's Croft Lane, Wrattling Road, and then Ann Suckling Road.

Mayor of St Edmundsbury Cllr Tim Marks will welcome the Torch as it passes Haverhill Arts Centre.

He said: "Response to the Torch relay is building at a thrilling pace and we are expecting many people from outlying areas to come here to watch it. This is going to be a very big event in Haverhill's history and we are getting ready to celebrate in style."

At Jubilee Plaza there will be a range of Olympic theme classes, displays and competitions from 10.30am onwards.

Others carrying the flame through Haverhill are Keren Goff, 32, from Fordham; Ryan Tutthill, 15, from Bury St Edmunds; Claire Scarff, 44, from Thetford; Dingfeng Liang, 41, from Shenyang City; Elodie Lafosse, 17, from Colchester; Holly Lambert, 12, from Waltham Abbey; Keith Church, 45, from Banbury; Stacey Johnson, 20, from Hertfordshire and Xiaodong Du, 42, from Daqing Heilongjiang.

Role model: Caroline Maclean during her visit to Kedington Primary School, with pupils Brooke Welch, Alexia Lawless, Violet Steel, Caitlin Moss-Gascoine and Daisy Strowger.

Picture: Keith Jones 839229.

Street entertainers add to fun

CROWDS waiting to see the Olympic Torch Relay will be treated to some top class entertainment while they wait.

The Haverhill Street Festival will this year have an Olympic and sporting theme to celebrate the Olympic Torch passing through town.

Starting from 10.30am on Saturday, July 7, shoppers and Olympic revellers will be treated to entertainment from the likes of wHoops, the Women's Hoops Squad, the Sputniker Sisters, the Van Dunk Brothers, the Campaign for Custard Pie Throwing, plus the return of Titan, the 8 foot Robot.

The silly, family-friendly entertainment will stop between 2.30pm and 3.15pm as the Olympic Torch makes its way through the streets and recommence at 3.15pm.

David ensures baby show won't end in tears

A PHOTOGRAPHER has stepped in at the last minute to save the baby show at a town's biggest annual event.

Organisers had feared there would be no event at this year's Haverhill Show on Sunday, because its previous organiser was about to move. However, David Doughty agreed to take over.

This year's show will be held at the Recreation Ground in Camps Road, Haverhill, from 8am on Saturday, in conjunction with the Olympic Torch Relay, as well as on Sunday. Organiser Mick Driver said the programme had been reduced because they are so short of committee members and people to help on the day.

There is still time for anyone who can help to become involved by calling 07791 999999.

David said: "I will do my utmost to help build the show each year and I do wish now to become a member on the committee. I have managed in one afternoon to gain three judges, two administrators and double the usual sponsorship for the event."

"The sponsorship usually comes from one local company but I wanted to get more businesses involved and so I personally approached the shopkeepers and business owners in Queen Street and the High Street, asking for just £20 each.

"I was very pleased to gain 95 per cent positive response, even in this harsh economic climate, and as a shopkeeper myself I know that we do get asked almost on a daily basis to give to different fund raising events and charities."

The baby show starts at 11am and no pre-booking is required. As well as the usual trophies and prizes for the first, second and third places in four categories: 0-6 months, 6 to 12 months, 12-18 months and 18 months-4 years, there is now a £100 cash prize for the overall winner £100 cash, plus a 20ins x 16ins canvas portrait.

The Haverhill Show will have a giant car boot sale on both days, plus on Sunday there will be a church service on the bandstand at 11.30am, displays of karate, dancing and majorettes, as well as classic cars, a fun dog show from 1pm, fancy dress, fun and games.

for a golden day

Views sought on best way to spend budget

RESIDENTS attending the Torch relay celebrations will be asked for their views on how money should be spent in Haverhill and which services are important to them.

Representatives from ONE Haverhill will be in the town centre to give people an chance to give their views in a five-minute survey.

Last December, the Government announced Haverhill had been chosen as one of 12 UK areas to pilot a new way of giving communities more say in how budgets are spent.

ONE Haverhill is an independent board that is bringing organisations and resources together to make them more effective and efficient in the town, and is leading the project. Members of the board include all three tiers of local government, businesses and the education, police, health and voluntary sectors. Havebury Housing, Abbeycroft Leisure and the faith community are also involved.

Anne Gower, chair of ONE Haverhill, said: "For the first time ever we as a town have the chance to have a real say in what money is spent on."

ONE Haverhill has identified two key areas of public funding to look at first – monies spent on improving the physical environment and opportunities for young people.

Local people will decide which of the areas under these headings are most important through a series of consultations involving surveys and interviews at public events like the torch relay during the next few months.

Church to hold fayre

A SUMMER Fayre will be held at St Mary's Church in Haverhill as part of the Torch celebrations.

The event takes place from 9am to 2pm with stalls and games. There will also be an auction with many bargains, including a special lot of six pieces of British Airways Concorde china.

Counting down: Haverhill is bedecked in union flags as the big day looms. Right, members of Haverhill in Bloom, who have supplied floral displays for the extravaganza.

Sporting students fly the Olympic flags

The event, on Monday, June 25, started with Samuel Ward students and pupils from local primary schools running with a replica Olympic torch.

They ran from Samuel Ward down Chalkstone Way, along Millfields Way, along Tasman Road and back to Samuel Ward.

Each youngster carried the 'torch' for 100 metres.

The torch returned to Samuel Ward and there was a parade around the field, with all the students representing different countries. Students then enjoyed events including javelin, high jump, shot putt, running, relays, hurdles, rounders, basketball, dodgeball, tag rugby, kwik cricket, football and curling.

Students competed in their houses, with Brunel running out the winner.

A spokesman said: "The PE department did a brilliant job of organising the day; all the staff were involved and the students entered into the spirit of the day wholeheartedly."

Torch man Rob in mission for Africa

TORCH bearer Rob Munroe will be giving people a chance to take pictures of him with his torch to boost the funds of charity Football to Gambia.

Rob 'Scouse' Munroe, 56, who previously ran the Haverhill Football Academy, will carry the Olympic Torch through Ipswich today before it arrives in Haverhill on Saturday.

Rob and his wife Jan, of Ruffles Road, Haverhill, have already made several visits to Gambia and raised more than £2,000 for the charity, which aims to promote education in the country through football.

On Saturday from 1-4pm, Rob will be outside Déjà vu in Queen Street, Haverhill, with his torch, inviting people to take their own pictures of him and make a donation for the charity.

Bloom team give floral boost

GRAND floral displays are lining the route along which the Olympic Torch will pass.

Many of the flowers have been provided by the Haverhill in Bloom committee, which has raised more than £6,000 over the past five years to create displays in the town.

They have provided an extra 16 hanging baskets around the Tesco roundabout, 17 barrier baskets along the new railings in the Pightle and planted 500 geraniums in the area, plus two large floral fountains opposite Aldi.

Valerie Morton, from the committee said: "All these extra colourful displays, together with our normal Jubilee Walk and Market Square efforts, show that Haverhill can compete with other town's floral displays."

The group is grateful to Aldi for the use of their car park, Pro-scape Ltd for planting the baskets and borough supervisor Mark Felton and his colleagues for the assembly and watering of the displays.

Mrs Morton added: "Now is the time to rebuild our profits and we will be holding our next gardeners' market and car boot sale on October 7.

Anyone wishing to join the small band of volunteers should call Valerie on (01440) 709099.

Why I'm backing an autism charity

As your mayor my charity this year is going to be the National Autistic Society (NAS) Suffolk Branch.

Autism is a lifelong developmental disability that affects how a person communicates with and relates to, other people. It also affects how they make sense of the world around them.

It is a spectrum condition, which means that, while all people with autism share certain difficulties, their condition will affect them in different ways. Some people with autism are able to live relatively independent lives but others may have accompanying learning disabilities and need a lifetime of specialist support. People with autism may also experience over- or under-sensitivity to sounds, touch, tastes, smells, light or colours.

Asperger syndrome is a form of autism. People with Asperger syndrome are often of average or above-average intelligence. They have fewer problems with speech but may still have difficulties with understanding and processing language. People with autism have said that the world, to them, is a mass of people, places and events which they struggle to make sense of and which can cause them considerable anxiety.

In particular, understanding and relating to other people, and taking part in everyday family and social life may be harder for them. Other people appear to know, intuitively, how to communicate and interact with each other, and some people with autism may wonder why they are 'different'.

All these conditions have great anxieties on children and adults with autism; this can lead to behaviour problems/meltdowns, leading to massive pressures on their parents and carers. Among other things, NAS Suffolk helps by going to parents'/carers' homes to give help and advice. Only people who are on the lower part of the spectrum have help from social services. All people

BY the time I next write we will have seen the Olympic Torch Relay come through Haverhill. The event on July 7 promises to be one of the biggest in Haverhill's history and could see as many as 15,000 people lining the streets.

With street entertainment and the usual Saturday market, the atmosphere in the run-up to the arrival of the torch (at about 2.30pm) will be one of excitement and anticipation. It will be an opportunity to show our wonderful town in its best light, and I am sure you won't want to miss out on being a part of it.

with autism can benefit from a timely diagnosis and access to appropriate services and support.

If you and/or your business can help with raffle prizes or anything else, please contact the town council, telephone (01440) 712858 or email admin@towncouncil.haverhill-uk.com.

I am of course busy representing the town council and Haverhill as mayor. I have been to David Doughty's business video launch, the West Suffolk College Art and Enterprise Showcase, the Haverhill Sinfonia Concert, the Armed Forces Flag-raising at Jubilee Plaza, Couplars Primary School's Let's Get Cooking Awards, the West Suffolk College Prize Giving at St Edmundsbury Cathedral, (the last three all in one day, phew!), the Man Alive '42' project launch, the Town Pastors' Celebration of One Year-Old Independent, LAMPH Graduation - Colne Valley Road, the Armed Forces Day at the Recreation Ground, a visit to St Nicholas Hospice, and Christmas Maltins Patients Group. It's all go, but it remains an honour and a pleasure to be your town mayor.

Film shows town is alive – and kicking

BY JO DEEKS

Email: editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk

FOUR decades after a BBC documentary which portrayed their town as doomed to failure, a group of Haverhill residents have made their own film to set the record straight.

Ron and Linda Walker were so incensed when they saw the Man Alive programme about Haverhill, originally screened in 1968, that they have spent the past two years working on their own film, portraying the vibrant, expanding community which the town has become.

The BBC Man Alive programme's critical documentary about Haverhill's expansion brought the "London Overspill" town to national attention. It attacked its high-density housing, lack of infrastructure, poor amenities, employment issues, council leadership – and predicted a gloomy future for the town. The new film by the group of amateur filmmakers demonstrates how the town has moved on, matured and succeeded.

Ron said: "We are not professional filmmakers, but we felt the need to stand up, be counted and stop the incessant carping, innuendo and destructive criticism about the town. We believe it portrays Haverhill in a positive light, with many of the benefits, brands and facilities that you would expect in any other successful town.

"We know there were challenges with the original town expansion – we were all here then, but we believe we were unreasonably and unfairly written off as doomed to failure – and we have set out to set the record straight once and for all".

Haverhill's Arts Centre was packed for a preview screening, with the audience including the town's former MP Sir Eldon Griffiths, who was featured in both the original and the new film. He said: "Haverhill had its difficulties, but it has turned the corner and it was always going to because of the people. Haverhill is on the map and after a bad start its future is looking much brighter."

Adrian Graves, son of late Canon Eric Graves, former vicar and councillor for Haverhill, said his late father had refused to be interviewed for the original programme, because he feared he would be misquoted.

Mr Graves said: "It set out to paint a deliberately negative picture of the town, which was largely responsible for an unwarranted bad image which has blemished the town's reputation ever since."

Haverhill born and bred Ron and his wife Linda, supported by "newcomer" Gary Pontin, a small group of likeminded individuals and some town councillors, worked on the new film. Prior to its '60s expansion, Haverhill was a small market town of under 5,000. Today, the population stands at more than 23,000 – with further expansion planned.

The new film also features Christopher Gurteen, now head of the family which owns Gurteens, the town centre clothing maker – and whose father took part in the 1968 programme and Nic Rumsey, a partner in leading investment group, Carisbrooke, a committed investor in Haverhill.

Then and now: former MP Sir Eldon Griffiths speaks at the showing and above left, dignitaries and some of the people involved in the film at the event at the Arts Centre.

Air ambulance lands to help out

AN air ambulance landed on a town's recreation ground to deliver strong pain relief to a patient.

The East Anglian Air Ambulance landed on the Recreation Ground in Camps Road, Haverhill, just after 1pm on Wednesday, June 27.

An air ambulance spokesman said: "We received a request from the ambulance service for a chap who was in so much pain that he needed stronger pain relief than they could give. We landed on the recreation ground and our doctor administered the pain relief to the patient in the ambulance. This controlled his pain enough so that he could be taken on to Addenbrooke's by road, so that was the end of our involvement."

War years return to railway

A TRIP back in time to see how a country railway line would have looked during the war years is on offer on Sunday, July 8.

The Colne Valley Railway in Castle Hedingham will be holding its 1940s day "Colne Valley at War" event from 9.30am, featuring re-enactors dressed in period clothes, military vehicles, evacuation trains and bomb trains. Tickets, which include access to all the railway's facilities as well as unlimited rides on the trains, cost £10 adults, £9 senior, £6 children and family £32. Sidings buffet will be open throughout the day and the railway's gift shop will be selling souvenirs and ice creams.

Man facing trial over incident

A MAN accused of involvement in a disturbance at a fast food shop is to stand trial in August.

Andrew Dunn, 30, of Stanton Place, Haverhill, appeared at Ipswich Crown Court last Friday when he pleaded not guilty to four offences at premises in High Street. The charges are one of affray and three of assault by beating. Craig Moore, Kelvin Burrage and Tony Trott on April 20. Judge David Goodin told Dunn that his trial would take place in August and was expected to last for three days.

Police appeal after burglary

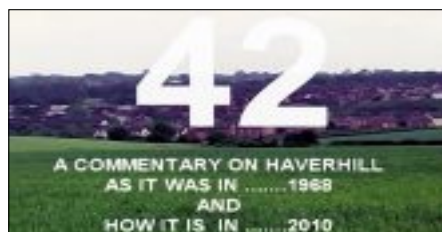

JEWELLERY, phones and computer equipment were stolen by thieves in an overnight burglary.

Police are appealing for information following the house burglary in Mill Hill, Haverhill, between 6.30am on Saturday and 1.15am on Sunday. A window was forced and the items stolen included jewellery, a computer, a tablet, two mobile phones, an mp3 player and a games console and games.

Calls should be made to DC Richard Morgan at Bury CID on 101 or Crimestoppers on 0800 555 111.

Revisiting the past: The title screen of the 1968 BBC programme and, right, the modern-day riposte.

MP welcomes new broadband boost

HAVERHILL'S MP has welcomed an important milestone in the campaign to secure better broadband for Suffolk.

Suffolk County Council has invited companies to bid for the contract, worth more than £40m, to improve the county's broadband infrastructure.

Matthew Hancock, MP for West Suffolk, welcomed the announcement, as the two companies bidding for the contract, British Telecom (BT) and Fujitsu, now have until September 7 to make their case.

The aim of the programme is to extend access to broadband to the areas of Suffolk which currently have slow speeds. By 2015, more than 90 per cent of premises in the county will be able to access superfast broadband. The remaining 10 per cent will have had a significant increase in available speed and reliability.

By the end of the year, the first businesses and homes should be connected.

Mr Hancock said: "Having access to a 21st century broadband network is vital for my constituents and businesses in West Suffolk."

Don't let your excited dogs ruin Olympic Torch Relay

Sir, with the Olympic Torch Relay passing by Burton End, Camps Road and the Recreation Ground, a reminder that dogs off leads are not allowed on the Recreation Ground between 9am and 5pm seven days a week.

Many dog owners are ignoring this law. With many people watching in this area and the excitement this brings, dogs can get over-excited, but if they're on leads no one – especially children running along the Recreation Ground by Camps Road – will come to any harm.

There are notices around the Recreation Ground explaining this with the fine owners may get by not obeying this law.

Please comply with this and let us all enjoy our day celebrating the Olympics to come.

Have your say on arms treaty

Sir, every week, the number of people who die as a result of armed violence is equivalent to half the population of Haverhill.

Next month, David Cameron and other world leaders have a once-in-a-lifetime chance to agree a new treaty which could save lives and help to reduce this number.

A new international legally-binding arms trade treaty would, for the first time, ensure that the arms trade is globally regulated and that the sale of weapons is closely monitored and scrutinised.

Our MP Matthew Hancock has told Havepeace that he supports a robust arms trade treaty. Please contact him to ensure that David Cameron takes your message to the UN this month.

Prisoner and officer took drugs into jail

A PRISON officer and an inmate conspired to smuggle heroin and cannabis into a jail, a court heard.

Alex Sheppard, 22, was caught out by a random search as he arrived for a night shift at HMP Highpoint, in Stradishall, on May 27 last year.

Prosecutor Jonathan Chibafa told Ipswich Crown Court that inside a rucksack being carried by Sheppard were two packages, one containing heroin and the other cannabis.

Inside the prison was Adam Bloy, 25, serving a sentence for robbery, who was the intended recipient.

Sheppard owned up immediately to a senior prison officer who then alerted police, resulting in Sheppard's arrest.

Both Sheppard and Bloy pleaded guilty to two offences of conspiracy to supply controlled drugs.

The court heard Sheppard claimed he committed the offence because of threats made by Bloy.

Sheppard told the court: "I felt intimidated and scared. I agreed to do it because I was worried about what would happen if I didn't."

However, Bloy alleged Sheppard was smuggling the drugs in return for a cash payment of £300. Bloy said Sheppard, who was in financial difficulties, had seemed "quite happy" to do it.

The hearing has been adjourned until a date yet to be set when Judge John Holt will decide which version of events to accept and then sentence both men, who remain in custody.

Sheppard, of Watlington, near King's Lynn, had worked for three years at HMP Highpoint carrying out night duties which included manning the gate and carrying out roll calls.

He told the court he had known Bloy, of King's Lynn, before he was sent to prison and told the authorities this.

Sheppard admitted he had failed to tell any senior officers he was in contact with Bloy via a mobile phone which was prohibited within the prison. The phone was found when Bloy's cell was searched.

The drugs found in the rucksack were alleged to have been collected by Sheppard from a woman in Bury St Edmunds on the instructions of Bloy.

Fiona Wright, a 21-year-old financial consultant of Bury St Edmunds, pleaded guilty to conveying a bottle of vodka which was also inside the rucksack.

She was sentenced to eight months' imprisonment, suspended for 12 months, with a requirement to complete 200 hours of unpaid work.

Kids' theatres of dreams

CHILDREN who designed their own theatres wowed everyone at their school – and the leisure manager from their local arts centre.

Children in Years 3 and 4 at Westfield Primary School in Haverhill took part in an extended homework project on the world of the theatre. They had to research theatres locally and nationally, design a programme, organise a seating plan, design costumes and make their own theatre complete with puppets.

The theme for the production was either Snow White or roadshow.

Nick Keeble from Haverhill Arts

Centre went along to see an exhibition of their work and help choose the winners. The Children's Choice award went to Sinead Santos in Year 4 and the overall winner chosen by Nick Keeble, Mrs Campbell and Mr Martin was won by Alicia Van Heerden.

Best research folder chosen by the governors went to Indie Basham and Annie Moore; best programme winners were Lucy Porter and Jack Bowen. Best seating plan went to Zuzanna Scowron and Kacu Palazon while best costumes went to Isobel Harris and Nigel Ode. Jack Littlechild was highly commended.

Man jailed over online bank fraud

A MAN who allowed his bank account to be used to be used for an online fraud has been jailed for eight months.

Vitaliji Tomasevskij, 23, was promised a cut of what was stolen from customers with the Halifax Bank, which he planned to send to his family in Lithuania who were in financial difficulties.

Ipswich Crown Court heard how Tomasevskij, of Withersfield Road, Haverhill, was arrested in August last year, after fraudsters were found to have hacked into online accounts and removed a total of £8,940.

Thirteen customers were affected in October and December 2010, with the largest single amount stolen being £4,100. Prosecutor Michael Crisp said police were able to quickly identify where the money had gone, because it went into two accounts being held in Tomasevskij's own name.

After initially denying involvement, Tomasevskij was fully co-operative with officers, giving them the names of others involved in the offence. Tomasevskij had been recruited by a man in Haverhill who offered him 10 per cent of what was being stolen if his bank accounts could be used to receive the money.

Alexandra Lindsey, for Tomasevskij, said her client was very remorseful and feared a prison sentence would jeopardise his plans to return to Lithuania to join the army. Miss Lindsey said: "His head was turned by the offer of additional money. His family is suffering from financial difficulties in Lithuania."

Almost as soon as the stolen money arrived in Tomasevskij's bank accounts it was transferred out again by the fraudsters. Miss Lindsey said: "He is clearly no criminal mastermind."

Tomasevskij had pleaded guilty to two offences of converting criminal property.

Mr Justice Saunders said: "These offences are extremely difficult to detect and strike at the root of the banking system and at people who put their money that they have earned into banks believing it to be safe. It is dreadful for that money to be removed and taken by others."

An immediate prison sentence was inevitable, he said.

We're moving up!

CHILDREN threw their mortar boards in the air at an end-of-term graduation ceremony.

Youngsters at the Happy Faces pre-school group in Haverhill were handed graduation scrolls on their last day with the group before going up to "big school". They also enjoyed a fun day of activities before leaving.

The group, which caters for children with and without disabilities, holds a waiting list for places in September. For more information, phone (01440) 762515.

Alcohol killed my son – just before his 30th

THE mother of an alcoholic who died just before his 30th birthday has spoken about how drinking turned him into "a little old man".

Dawn Titterington told how she found her son dead at home after his frail body succumbed to pneumonia.

Matthew Stiebrins, 29, from Haverhill, began drinking bottles of vodka at the age of 15 with friends before his habit spiralled out of control.

His alcohol abuse was so bad that the drink started eating away at his brain and left him with irreversible cirrhosis of the liver.

He died just three months before his 30th birthday – as doctors at Addenbrooke's had grimly predicted – because his organs were so badly damaged.

Dawn, 51, said: "The alcohol turned him into a little old man."

"He told me he was going to ring me on the night of his death, but he never did. When I went to his house he was dead."

"He died from pneumonia. His body was so weak. Nobody should have to see

A warning to others: Dawn Titterington with son Matthew Stiebrins, who died due to alcohol abuse after he started drinking in his teens.

their child die before them."

She added: "He suffered so much and so am I. But I hope his story helps someone."

Speaking from his bedside, in February last year, Dawn said: "When he was 15 he got into a crowd that liked going out drinking, like many teenagers do."

"The others grew out of it but Matthew didn't. He didn't stop."

"In the end it just didn't matter what we said – all the warnings we gave. He would say 'It's only a few, it won't do me any harm, everyone drinks'."

She added: "There's not enough about the dangers of alcohol, always campaigns about smoking and drugs."

"There is no substitute, like nicotine patches, for alcoholics."

"Teenagers think they can give it up but their bodies won't let them. You would never have guessed that Matthew would have been the one from his group of friends to become hooked."

Matthew used to bunk off school to drink as a teenager. By the time he was 18, he was addicted and shoplifting to fund his habit.

In the months before his death on February 5, he was in and out of Addenbrooke's and doctors predicted he would not live to see his 30th birthday on May 4.

Dawn, who works as a seamstress and remarried after she left Matthew's father 10 years ago, said she had worried about drugs more than alcohol when her children were young.

Now she is campaigning for more support for alcoholics to prevent other parents going through similar heartache.

Law change on tenancies

Q We've been on the waiting list for a council house for ages and finally have an offer of somewhere to live. I thought this would give us security in a place we could afford, but someone told me it's not like that any more and they can make you move after a certain time. Is this true?

A If you are a council or a housing association tenant you normally have a tenancy for life. The rent you pay is also cheaper than if you were renting privately, and when you die, you can normally pass your home to your spouse or partner and sometimes to other family members who were living with you. This will not be the case for much longer as the law will soon be changing for new tenants, possibly from April this year. The rights of existing council and housing association tenants will not change.

In a regular feature, the Haverhill branch of Suffolk West Citizens Advice Bureau looks at recent developments regarding payment protection insurance and what your rights are.

Councils will still have the option to offer 'lifetime' tenancies to new tenants, but they will also be able to offer them a shorter tenancy, known as a flexible tenancy.

This will be for a minimum of two years, but in most cases it will last for five years or more. If you're given a flexible tenancy for a fixed period of time, the council will review your circumstances before the tenancy comes to an end to see if you still need council housing or not.

There are also other changes planned. If you're homeless through no fault of your own and apply to the council to be housed, it can find you a privately rented home to live in instead of a council or housing association place. If you refuse, the council won't always have to offer you another place.

Each council will also have more control of who they'll accept on their housing waiting list, although they'll still have to look after people who are in most need, for example, if you're homeless.

You can get more information and advice at your nearest CAB – go to www.adviceguide.org.uk for contact details.

Top student Alice joins hotel school

A WEST Wrating student has been awarded a scholarship as one of the first people to attend a prestigious new hotel school.

Alice Holah, 18, received the scholarship worth £3,000 from the Savoy Educational Trust as she begins her studies at the Edge Hotel School, the UK's first hotel school based entirely in a fully operational commercial hotel.

She is among the first group of students who started their courses this week at the pioneering school, sited at the University of Essex's Colchester Campus.

She will be working towards a fast-track BA Honours degree in hotel management over the next two years, combining academic study with practical experience of working in a luxury country house hotel, the newly-refurbished Wivenhoe House.

Bright future: Alice Holah, from West Wrating, with the vice-chancellor of the University of Essex, Colin Riordan

CP

Alice said: "It is pretty amazing to be involved in the opening of the Edge Hotel School. Being able to get the practical experience of working in a hotel alongside the theory is what made me really want to apply here."

"Previously I have worked as a waitress in a hotel just outside Cambridge and I am hoping that doing this course will help me get a better job within the hospitality industry in the future. I would like to eventually work my way up to management and I would also one day like to run my own hotel."

The Savoy Educational Trust scholarships are designed to support talented students and help encourage the outstanding hospitality managers of the future. Scholarships were awarded by a panel based on a combination of criteria from the application form and supporting statement.

A further six scholarships will be awarded in the coming year, three for each of the next two intakes, in July and September.

Alice said: "I am really grateful as the scholarship will give me extra help towards my studies."

Alan Jenkins, principal of the Edge Hotel School, said: "With their impressive reputation built over 50 years of developing education, training and qualifications in the hospitality sector, the support of Savoy Educational Trust is a significant endorsement of our mission based on a model of 'learning-by-doing'. We are honoured to be working with them."

Edge Hotel School students achieve a degree awarded by the University of Essex while working at the historic Wivenhoe House, a luxury hotel and restaurant.

Applications for a scholarship can be found at www.edgehotelschool.ac.uk or by contacting the Edge Hotel School directly at admissions@edgehotelschool.ac.uk or by phoning (01206) 872858.

Lesley beats the odds to get back on her feet

Making Headway: Lesley Perry, who suffered a brain haemorrhage, has been helped in her rehabilitation by Headway Cambridgeshire.

Picture: David Johnson 827417

DRIVING to her home in Horseheath, Lesley Perry was happily thinking about her husband Bob's 50th birthday party, due to take place the next day.

A surprise bash, Lesley had spent weeks organising the event and all of the couple's friends and family were invited. But as she approached home, Lesley began experiencing severe pains in her head and started to feel very unwell.

"I was actually on my way back from the doctors at the time," remembers the 60-year-old. "My eye had all puffed up and I didn't want to be at the party looking like something from outer space!"

"The pains were really, really bad and I thought 'shall I turn back?' but I just wanted to get home."

With her vision and awareness impaired by the pain, Lesley was struggling to make the last few feet of her journey. "I knocked the spot light off the car by hitting a bollard and I got to just opposite our driveway gate and stalled the car and couldn't get it back into gear," she remembers. "I just wanted to get out of the car so I opened the door and fell into the road and couldn't get back in."

A brain haemorrhage left Lesley Perry with just a 30 per cent chance of survival and turned her world upside down. Here, she tells LOUISE MARTIN about her rehabilitation and the work of Headway

Lesley's neighbour had witnessed her distress and rushed to help her. "She called for an ambulance because she realised something was really wrong and then she said 'shall I phone Bob?', she remembers. "I was crying at the time and I said 'yes please'. I remember Bob being at the side of the road and hearing the ambulance siren but after that I don't remember anything until I came around in hospital."

Lesley had suffered a subarachnoid haemorrhage from a brain aneurysm, which is a weakness in the wall of an artery, which swells up and bursts, haemorrhaging into the brain. That weakness could have been there since birth and the aneurysm, which happened in February 2001, could have happened at any time.

Seriously ill, Lesley was rushed to Addenbrooke's Hospital where she lost consciousness and had to be resuscitated. The mum of two was then taken to the neuro theatre for surgery. "I'm told I had to have a hole cut into my skull to release the internal pressure from the haemorrhage," she says. "The surgeon clipped the artery to stop it bleeding and removed a blood clot. I had seven litres of blood transfused during the operation."

Lesley's worried family were told she had just a 30 per cent chance of surviving surgery, a 10 per cent chance of avoiding infections and a 40 per cent chance of surviving any infections she caught. Despite the grave odds, Lesley made it through the painstaking four-hour operation and remained in an induced coma for five days to reduce the risk of further swelling on her brain.

"When I came round there were just twitches and flickers on my left arm and leg," says Lesley. "I vaguely remember people talking to me, asking me things like 'can you move your little finger?' The right side of my body was perfectly okay but on my left side I could only squidge up my big toe."

"Nothing was real. I don't think there was any realisation of what had happened to begin with."

Lesley contracted MRSA and pneumonia, and spent six weeks in the Neurosciences Critical Care Unit (NCCU). "I didn't know about the infection so I must have been not with it at all, which is probably just as well," smiles Lesley. "I was told afterwards but I couldn't tell you what it was like."

Over the following weeks Lesley was cared for around the clock and, two months after the operation that saved her life, she was able to begin rehabilitation. "I was always a busy person. When I was doing rehab it was nice to feel I was doing something," she says.

Confined to a wheelchair, paralysed down her left side and with no vision in the left side of both eyes, Lesley had a massive task ahead of her. "I was a bit scared of rehab because I might make a fool of myself," says Lesley. "I had physio twice a day, every day, and occupational therapy sessions every day. I also had speech therapy once or twice a week.

"I eventually started walking with a stick. I was still in a wheelchair nearly all the time but in the physio room I could hobble a little bit. It took a lot of work to get me there."

That July, five months after the haemorrhage, Lesley was allowed to go home.

"It was wonderful to go home," smiles Lesley. "My family visited me every night in hospital; I hated it when they went. While I was in rehab David Gray and Travis were my bed partners; I listened to them every night on my ear phones."

Although delighted to be back with her family, Lesley's life had changed incomprehensibly. The once busy wife and mum now relied almost entirely upon her wheelchair, was struggling with her speech and, when Bob returned to work, required a full time carer.

More than 10 years since that fateful day, Lesley is still learning to adapt to her new way of living but thanks to her steely determination, the love of her friends and family and support from Headway Cambridgeshire – the organisation that provides specialist services and support to people with an acquired brain injury – she can now walk short distances without the aid of a walking stick, and is much more positive about the future.

Chatting to me at Headway's base at Mill Road, Cambridge, Lesley explains how visiting Headway since August 2001 – a month after she was discharged from hospital – has helped her to learn to walk again, and deal with the after effects of her brain trauma.

"I never imagined I'd be walking around without a stick anything more than a few paces," admits Lesley. "I couldn't visualise further than that. I came here in a wheelchair and I've come on a long way since then. Veer Dhillon, the gym instructor, is absolutely brilliant; he's helped me so much."

"I still use the wheelchair but it's under protest. If I'm with the family and it's somewhere there's going to be lots of crowds and hard to get around then I use it. I hate it, absolutely detest it.

"I used to feel nervous about walking and think 'I'll be glad when I get there because then the walking will be over', but I don't feel nervous now."

Although Lesley has made huge improvements in her mobility, her left side is still weak and, because of her restricted vision in both eyes, she is prone to falling. "I bump into no end of things," says Lesley.

"I'm always bashing my head into door frames. I'm not left alone at home because I'm always falling over and I can't go out on my own."

Lesley is positive about improving her walking further in the future but admits she does have down days and can get very frustrated by her disabilities. "I've been very angry and so many times I've been like a volcano about to erupt and then something triggers me and I do erupt and believe me I'm the worst person in the world to know then. The trouble is usually it's poor Bob that ends up with the worst of it."

The brave mum refers to Bob as "her guardian angel" and says her two children, Emma, 30, and Jamie, 25, have been brilliant. "I'm so thankful that the haemorrhage didn't happen when the children were younger. If it had I would have missed out on such a lot."

The whole family are grateful for the help Headway Cambridgeshire has given Lesley and, to show their appreciation, the siblings have set themselves fundraising challenges in aid of Headway UK.

In April this year Emma ran the London Marathon raising more than £2,500 for the organisation. Next month Jamie will be raising funds for Headway Cambridgeshire when he takes on a gruelling obstacle-packed Spartan Race.

For now, Lesley takes each day as it comes and continues to work hard at her physiotherapy with Headway. "Improvements are very gradual. I'd love them to happen just like that, believe me, but nothing's instant. I just try to keep thinking positively. When this happened it turned my world upside down and I said to myself 'this isn't going to beat me'. I looked upon it as a challenge, and I still do."

Olympic torch: Your chance for a picture

THE Olympic Flame is on the move, and Haverhill will experience its moment in the spotlight this Saturday, as the torch passes through en route to Cambridge.

This once in a lifetime event is not to be missed, so make sure to offer it a warm welcome by lining the bunting-clad streets at approximately 2.30pm.

Its route through the town – on day 50 of its nationwide tour – will begin on Burton End at Cleves Road, before travelling along Camps Road, Market Hill, High Street, Hamlet Road, Mount Road, Ehringhausen Way and finishing off at Wratting Road by Ann Suckling Road. Miss it, and miss out!

Here are some facts about the Olympic flame:

- During the Games in Ancient Greece, a sacred flame burned continually on the altar of the goddess, Hera.
- In addition, heralds were summoned to travel throughout Greece to announce the Games, declaring a sacred truce for the duration.
- A very precise ritual for the lighting of the flame is followed at every Games.

Picture opportunity: Miss it, and miss out forever! The Olympic flame will pass through Haverhill en route to Cambridge on Saturday.

It is lit from the sun's rays at the Temple of Hera in Olympia, in a traditional ceremony among the ruins of the home of the ancient Games.

- After a short relay around Greece, the flame is handed over to the new host city at another ceremony in the Panathenaiko stadium in Athens.
- The flame is then delivered to the host country, where it is transferred from one torchbearer to another, spreading the message of peace, unity and friendship.

- It ends its journey as the last torchbearer lights the cauldron at the Olympic Games Opening Ceremony in the Olympic Stadium, marking the official start of the Games.
- The flame is extinguished on the final day of the Games, at the Closing Ceremony.

For more information about the torch and its route, visit www.london2012.com.

IFF wishes to congratulate all involved in the journey of the Flame through Haverhill

Drunken mum knocked out victim's tooth

A SINGLE mum who punched a stranger in the face, knocking out a tooth, told magistrates she was so drunk that she had no recollection of the incident.

Nikita Dudhill, 25, a mother of two from the Isle of Dogs in London, admitted a charge of using threatening behaviour in Haverhill when she appeared before magistrates at Bury St Edmunds on Tuesday, June 26.

She was given an 18-month conditional discharge in view of her guilty plea and previous good character, but warned any further offences would be treated very seriously.

Colette Griffiths, prosecuting, told the court that a group of people, including a woman called Jordan Burnside, had been leaving Bar Vu nightclub in Haverhill in February, when Dudhill suddenly appeared and grabbed Ms Burnside round the neck.

BY JO DEEKS

Email: editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk

She also punched Ms Burnside in the face, causing a tooth to fall out.

Ms Griffiths said Dudhill had been prosecuted for a public order offence rather than assault, because Ms Burnside was currently travelling around Australia and not available to give evidence.

Claire Lockwood, for Dudhill, said she had been visiting members of her family in Haverhill and went out for the evening with her cousin. She did not know the other woman and could give no explanation for her actions.

Ms Lockwood said: "It appears to be out of character – it is her first offence before the courts.

"She is embarrassed to have been involved in something like this, which she cannot remember. She has stopped going out and drinking alcohol because of this. She has learned her lesson being arrested and locked up has alarmed her."

Stuart Roy, chairman of the magistrates, said: "Our concern is that it happened and there does not appear to be a reason why it happened. It is an aggravating factor that you cannot remember anything about it.

"We are putting you on your mettle for the next 18 months and your behaviour has to be acceptable."

Mayor in plea for blood donors

A MAYOR has given his support to the Blood Transfusion Service and spoken of how members of his own family had been among the lives it helped to save.

Mayor of St Edmundsbury Cllr Tim Marks met mascot Billy Blood, as well as several donors and a man whose life had been saved by blood transfusions, during National Blood Week.

Cllr Marks said: "Most recently, my mother in law developed an ulcer through taking aspirin – the resulting bleed made her severely anaemic.

"Without the four units of blood given immediately, she would not have survived. Such a simple event – a small internal bleed – but without blood this would have been catastrophic.

"This simple event could happen to any one of us – and without these precious donations the outcome would be catastrophically different.

"We should all be immensely grateful for those who already donate blood and blood products but we need many more on a regular basis."

Cllr Marks urged everyone not to wait, but to call today to arrange to donate on 0300 123 23 23 or to visit www.blood.co.uk.

Getting an education

As she arrives in Cambridge, West End and screen star Claire Sweeney tells LOUISE CUMMINGS how it feels to step into Julie Walters' shoes in Educating Rita

BUBBLY, brimming with confidence and Scouse charm, stage and screen darling Claire Sweeney doesn't strike you as the type to worry about anything.

But she has been suffering sleepless nights of late. And it's not at the thought of a Brookside re-run. The gregarious one, it seems, has met her match with the latest script to fall onto her doormat: taking up the role made famous by Julia Walters in the Willy Russell classic Educating Rita.

"You're talking 130 pages of dialogue for just the two of us and you know, I have to do three-page speeches; it's absolutely terrifying," she confides in her friendly Liverpudlian lilt.

Fortunately, the actress has had a lot of support from her stage sidekick, Olivier-award winning actor Matthew Kelly. "The only way I could bed the lines in was to keep going over them with Matthew; it was impossible sitting and looking at the script at home, I thought I was never going to learn it. Matthew's a wonderful guy; I know him from when I did Celebrity Stars in Their Eyes. We're buddies on stage as well as off," she enthuses.

The film version, which starred Julie Walters and Michael Caine, was Oscar-nominated and won three Bafta Awards.

For those who haven't seen Willy Russell's modern classic, which was inspired by his own experiences at evening classes, it follows feisty Liverpudlian hairdresser Rita who has a new-found passion for higher education and self-improvement. Cue jaded university professor Frank, whose disillusionment with life has driven him to the bottle. Offering to tutor the brash student to earn extra cash, Frank's attitude is soon challenged and he is forced to reassess his life.

"It's such a beautifully written play, an amazing life-affirming piece," Claire says thoughtfully. "I love the humour, I love the pathos; you know, it touches every element of emotion and it's so cleverly written."

"Working with Willy Russell is a dream because he's a childhood hero of mine. I grew up with his plays in Liverpool."

Hailing from Walton, having had a typical working class upbringing, Claire has found it easy to empathise with her character. "I love Rita, because I can relate to her and there are elements of her in all of us. She's just fantastic because she wants to break the mould, break away and better herself, and she's getting all this grief for doing it. Then Frank educates her and she doesn't need him any more, and it's really quite sad."

Surprisingly, though Claire is something of a veteran of the West End, having starred as Roxie in Chicago, Adelaide opposite Patrick Swayze in the award-winning production of Gypsy and Dolls, Paulette in a UK Tour of Legally Blonde and won rave reviews in Andrew Lloyd Webber and Don Black's one-woman show Tell Me On A Sunday, this is the role she is finding most physically draining. "It is truly the most exhausting show I have ever done; it's the concentration and brainpower required for it – it's absolutely knacker!"

This is the 41-year-old's debut appearance at the Arts Theatre, though she's had a spy in the camp. "My friend Sheila Ferguson did pantomime there last Christmas and she spoke really highly of it, so I am excited," she smiles.

Over the years, Claire has starred in reality shows, including the first Celebrity Big Brother and Strictly Come Dancing, to presenting daytime favourite 60 Minute Makeover, appearing on Loose Women, recording her own top five album and turning forces' sweetheart as the first entertainer to fly out to Afghanistan and Oman.

Clearly this exuberant actress has just always loved being in the spotlight. After all, by the age of 11 she was enrolled at Eliot Clark Stage School in Liverpool, and by 14 she was playing the clubs, aided by her dad, a butcher by trade, who would drive her to gigs in the back of his meat van. "He used to bribe the venues with a leg of lamb to let me sing," Claire says, letting out a giggle. "I was about 14 or 15; I was singing songs from the musicals back then. It's amazing that my life has gone full circle now."

But the role that catapulted Claire to fame was that of drug smuggling, gun-toting Lindsey Corkhill in Channel 4 soap Brookside.

"I'm incredibly proud of Brookside," she says. "I felt blessed to have such a meaty role, especially as I thought I was only going in for a couple of episodes, then suddenly I got this wonderful part to play."

Claire's latest venture is her own clothing line for Fashion World – designed for ladies in sizes 12 to 32.

So could the dream be to turn full-time fashionista like Victoria Beckham? "I'd like to do more, sure, but to be honest I feel like I'm living the dream every night at the moment. I'm loving playing Rita; she's such a wonderful part and working with Willy Russell, Matthew Kelly and the director, I just feel blessed. In my eyes I've achieved the dream."

Real-life romance?

HAVE you ever watched a romantic comedy and wondered, "could that actually happen in real life?" Lizzy Mace and Juliette Burton have. What's more, they've decided to find out!

Last year, the duo took their show, Rom Com Con, to Edinburgh, winning acclaim for their wacky yet heartfelt look at modern romance that sees them recount their attempts to test the formulas for finding love, as seen in the movies, including talking to coma patients (While You Were Sleeping), standing on street corners (Pretty Woman) and going on a date with a guy whose paddling pool they used to play in (Bridget Jones's Diary).

As well as bringing their hugely successful show to Cambridge, the pair will be giving us a chance to see their latest work in progress, Heartbreak Hotel.

Relationships are hard, and we all need somewhere to escape to when things get rough. Whether you're troubled and in love or lost without it and in need of shelter, Mace and Burton welcome you to Heartbreak Hotel. Join them as they chat to guests from across the Fringe in this chat-show exploring heartbreak, heartache and those heart-warming moments that make it all worthwhile.

■ Rom Com Con and Heartbreak Hotel, CB2, Cambridge, July 8 to 10 at 7pm. Tickets are £6 (£5 concessions). To book, contact (01223) 300085 / www.adc.theatre.com.

COMEDY queen Victoria Wood has granted a young local producer the rights to stage a community production of Acorn Antiques: The Musical this July in Cambridge. The show will be the East Anglian premiere production of the musical, based on the classic '80s sketch starring Victoria Wood and Julie Walters.

In 2005, the musical opened in the West End then began a UK tour which ran for over 16 weeks. Producer Louis Ling is excited to be bringing the show to Cambridge, saying: "I really love this show – Victoria Wood's characters are so much fun and so enjoyable to watch. It will be great for our cast to have a lively audience to bounce off."

Acorn Antiques was first seen on the BBC 26 years ago and has been a firm favourite with the nation ever since. The musical follows Miss Babs's struggle to keep her antiques business open, as shop after shop in the High Street is forced out by faceless chains... can she afford to turn down the offer from The Guilty Bean (the world's second-biggest chain of coffee shops, and if they do update the shop can they still afford to employ Mrs Overall at all?)

Sarah Phelps from Cambridge, a teacher by day, but who has been doing theatre work for 14 years, is the show's director.

"It's a micky-take of the cheesy sitcoms of the time, with the wobbling sets and lack of continuity, and the main character is Mrs Overall, who's named after a Mrs Mac from one of those shows. People got to know and love these characters so about 10 years ago Victoria Wood wrote it as a musical, and now we're one of the first groups in East Anglia to get the rights to tour it.

"Apparently Victoria Wood is coming to see it as well, though I'm trying to keep it quiet from the cast because I'm worried they might go a bit nuts! The rumour is it'll be opening night, but in a way I'm hoping it's not!

■ Acorn Antiques, ADC Theatre, until Saturday, July 7 at 7.45pm. (2.30pm Sat matinee). Tickets are £12 (£10 concessions) from (01223) 300085 / www.adc.theatre.com.

news from

FACTION Theatre Company present an energetic and physical production of Shakespeare's A Midsummer Night's Dream tonight at 7.30pm, directed by Mark Leipacher with music by Sons Between Guns.

Picture the scene, a duke and an amazon celebrate their engagement but can't persuade Hermia to marry Demetrius. She and Lysander elope, but are pursued by their respective rivals.

They and an amateur dramatics group of local tradesmen all end up in the mystical Athenian woods where the fairy kingdom is in turmoil. It's a must see.

The first of the Edinburgh Fringe Previews takes place tomorrow at 8pm with two of the UK's top comedians, Josh Widdicombe and Neil Delamere, testing the water with their new material. There are more laughs in store on Friday, July 13 at 8pm when Paul Chowdhry and Seann Walsh try out their latest offerings. Prepare for lots of laughs. Tickets are £6 but if you book for both nights you can come in for £10.

On Saturday, the arts centre is staging a barn dance. Take your partners by the hand from 7.30pm onwards. The Haverhill Owls Women's Institute are running the event. The bar will be open and food is available but not included in the £5 ticket price.

On the cinema front, This Sporting Life (12A), from 1963, is showing on Monday, July 9 at 7.45pm. Starring Richard Harris and Rachel Roberts, Lindsay Anderson's gritty film is widely recognised as a high point of the British new wave. The big film

THE AMAZING SPIDER-MAN

Certificate 12A, 2h16m

EVERY great story has a beginning – Spider-Man now has two.

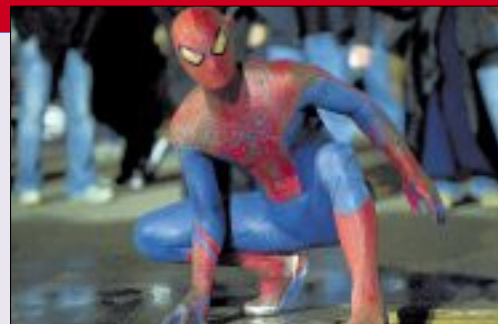

Following Sam Raimi's action-packed 2002 blockbuster comes this emotionally richer though equally exhilarating opening chapter directed with verve by Marc Webb.

Rebooting the franchise 10 years after Tobey Maguire donned the red and blue skin-tight suit as the eponymous web-slinger, The Amazing Spider-Man recounts the same origins story, albeit without cackling arch-nemesis Green Goblin or love interest Mary Jane.

High school student Peter Parker (Andrew Garfield) is haunted by the disappearance of his parents (Campbell Scott and Embeth Davidtz). He lives with his uncle Ben (Martin Sheen) and aunt May (Sally Field) and contends with all the usual growing pains, including persistent bullying from classmate Flash Thompson (Chris Zylka).

A tender romance with fellow student Gwen Stacy (Emma Stone) – the daughter of police chief Captain Stacy (Denis Leary) – keeps Peter on an even keel until he is bitten by a genetically modified arachnid.

At the same time, he discovers evidence linking the disappearance of his parents to his father's business partner, Dr Curt Connors (Rhys Ifans). Little does Peter realise that Connors also has a secret alter ego: reptilian menace The Lizard. The Amazing Spider-Man is a terrifically entertaining refurbishment of the Marvel Comics superhero, blessed with an appealing mix of high-octane action and humour. Technology has advanced in gargantuan bounds in the past decade and this film soars in the action sequences, some in first-person perspective to take full advantage of the 3D format.

Knot in my back yard, thanks

by Hannah Stephenson

I CAUGHT up with Alan Titchmarsh at the recent BBC Gardeners' World Live show when he was giving advice on how to combat Japanese knotweed, the peril of many gardeners, a weed which is right up there on the list of seemingly indestructible thugs.

"It was brought into this country as an ornamental plant by the Victorians, who thought it was beautiful," he lamented.

It has an underground network of tough, fast-growing rhizomes which makes it really difficult to control and in the summer the bamboo-like stems grow to more than 2.1m (7ft), suppressing all other growth.

The RHS advises that if you're going to try digging it out, remove as much root as possible, then repeatedly destroy regrowth. In this way the energy reserves in the remaining underground parts will be gradually exhausted but this process could take a very long time.

Another option is to place a layer of carpet over it but you'll have to leave it a long time before it dies and you can dig it up.

And when you dispose of the plant, do so carefully, allowing it to dry out before burning. Whatever you do, don't put it on your compost heap or into your normal household waste because it colonises without seeding. It might be worth contacting your local council for advice on its disposal.

Titchmarsh, whose second ITV1 six-part series of Love Your Garden is currently being shown on Tuesday nights, says the best time to tackle this incessant weed is when it's in flower.

"Chop it down to ground level and when it starts to regenerate, and particularly when it's flowering, that's the best time to spray Japanese knotweed," he says.

He says it's more susceptible to systemic weedkillers such as Roundup later in the season.

"Give it one big blast in autumn or late summer when it starts to flower," he advises.

If it's coming through from a neighbour's garden, you'll need to put a physical vertical barrier in the soil, digging a trench not less than 2m deep and inserting a tough, impenetrable membrane into it.

My own nemesis is ground elder, introduced to Britain by the Romans as a pot herb and for its supposed medicinal purposes.

I well recall when I first moved to my present house, one border was covered in it and I ended up putting weed-suppressing membrane on the whole area, left it for about six months and then dug out every bit of root I could see.

Since then, it has threatened to appear from my neighbour's garden, but I spray emerging leaves with systemic weedkiller on warm days in spring and that seems to keep it at bay.

Persistent hoeing will weaken the plant but won't kill it as the rhizomes are brittle and the plant will regrow from any fragment.

If the weed creeps among your other garden plants, you may end up having to dig those up as well and untangle the runners from their roots, then allow time for any remaining bits to regrow and treat them with glyphosate.

Another rampant pest is couch grass, with its fast-growing rhizomes, which can produce hundreds of feet of roots underground, giving rise to a mass of shoots above ground.

It makes plants look untidy, with long blades of grass sticking out among your flowers, but can be dug up as the roots are shallow, rarely more than 20cm (8in) deep.

If you loosen the soil as you go, you may be able to pull out long, intact lengths of rhizome. Try not to leave bits of root in the soil because they will only come up again.

If your couch grass has spread from the lawn, create a clear edge between the lawn and flower beds to stop it spreading.

Aggressive perennial weeds are a pain – but planning your attack and patience will hopefully help to eradicate them.

Kia is 'best manufacturer'

WHICH? has named Kia as its Best car Manufacturer for 2012 in its annual awards, praising the company's "superb new range of cars" as well as the brand's excellent value for money and "industry-leading" seven year warranty.

Presenting the award, Which? chief executive, Peter Vicary-Smith said: "This is the first time Kia has made the shortlist and to walk off with the title is a significant achievement."

He went on to praise Kia for being one of the top ranked brands in the 2012 Which? car survey for both customer satisfaction and reliability. Kia beat off competition from BMW, Hyundai, Skoda and Toyota to take the prize.

Which? said in its commendation: "Kia's new Rio, Sorento and Picanto have all impressed in our Test Lab, while the new cee'd and Optima get the thumbs-up from our initial road tests. Compared to where it was just five years ago, we feel that Kia is the most improved car brand around."

Kevin Driscoll, general sales manager at EMG Kia in Cambridge, said: "At EMG, we've kept an eye on Kia's steady rise in popularity and quality and have always been confident about its future."

"I'm thoroughly delighted that such acclaim from Which? has come to Kia from the UK's biggest consumer champion."

The popular British-built Honda Jazz has another accolade to add to its growing trophy cabinet – it has been named Britain's Best Used Supermini by Which?

Experts praised the Jazz's class-leading space and versatility, bullet-proof reliability, strong resale values and the fact it's easy and safe to drive. The results also took into account positive feedback from Jazz owners.

Winner: The Kia Sportage.

Richard Headland, cars editor at Which?, commented: "Buyers looking for a nearly-new supermini should make a beeline for the Jazz.

"Owners love its blend of class-leading interior space, smart looks and excellent reliability."

"It's sought-after second-hand, so not the cheapest choice, but you'll also find buyers willing to pay good money when you come to sell it later."

Mazda's MX-5 Venture stands out from the crowd

A HIGH-END MX-5 special edition, the Venture stands out. With its light gun metal 17-inch alloy wheels, Havana brown heated leather seats and piano black detailing, the Mazda MX-5 Venture keeps a tried and tested formula fresh.

Available with both 1.8 and 2.0-litre engines and in both soft-top and Roadster-Coupe body styles, it's bound to be popular.

The Venture special edition is offered with a choice of 124bhp 1.8-litre power or a 158bhp 2.0-litre unit. Neither makes the car the last word in searing pace but you can get to 60mph in 9.9 seconds with the 1.8 and 7.9 seconds with the 2.0-litre.

Straight line speed was never what the MX-5 was about, instead majoring on tactility, usability, comparatively modest grip levels and a chassis that's helped generations of drivers get to grips with rear-wheel drive dynamics.

Despite not setting the world alight with their performance, both engines are plenty fast enough to extract some enjoyment from the MX-5's sweet chassis.

There's a little more roll through corners than you might expect and neither of the engines play a particularly inspiring soundtrack but there's a huge amount of fun to be had behind the wheel.

The fundamentals of the MX-5 endure whatever edition you choose to buy. Like all MX-5 models, this revised third generation model was designed to be as light as possible while meeting global safety requirements.

The handling remains as much fun as ever although the limited slip differential fitted to the 2.0-litre version is going to be a draw for serious drivers.

The Venture offers decent value for money and will paint a huge smile on your face. There's a lot of life in that particular formula.

BMW enhances UK model line-up

THIS month BMW introduces a package of new model and engine revisions across the range.

The changes to the 3 Series saloon and the 5 and 6 Series ranges significantly broaden BMW's market coverage in the UK, extending its lead in fuel-saving, emissions-reducing measures while adding to customer choice and personalisation options.

With the arrival of hybrid, four-wheel-drive and M Sport variants of the 3 Series Saloon, BMW offers its most comprehensive line-up ever of the model that is the heart of the brand. The 320i xDrive, ActiveHybrid 3 and M Sport versions start production in July along with the 330d, followed in November by the 316i and 320i EfficientDynamics.

The ActiveHybrid 3 is unique in the compact premium saloon class. Powered by the BMW TwinPower Turbo 3.0-litre six-cylinder engine in tandem with a 40kW (55hp) electric motor, it develops a combined 340hp and 450Nm of torque to deliver exceptional performance, reaching 62mph from zero in just 5.3 seconds.

At speeds of up to 37mph it can travel up to 2.4 miles solely on electric power supplied by its high-performance lithium-ion battery. With a combined fuel consumption of 47.9mpg and CO2 emissions of 139g/km it attracts only an 18 per cent benefit-in-kind company car taxation rate.

Just as practical as it economical, the ActiveHybrid 3 retains 390-litres of useable boot space. The BMW ActiveHybrid 3 is available in SE, Modern, Luxury and M Sport specification.

The xDrive brings the all-year-round stability and safety of four-wheel-drive to the 3 Series. Available initially on the 320i and powered by the 184hp TwinPower Turbo 2.0-litre four-cylinder engine, it costs from £27,400 for a BMW

320i SE. With the six-speed manual gearbox the 320i xDrive accelerates from zero to 62mph in 7.4 seconds and has fuel consumption and CO2 figures of 41.5mpg and 159g/km. The new BMW 330d Saloon is priced from £33,280.

Skoda dominates awards

SKODA had a night to remember at the Auto Express New Car Awards with five wins – and the Skoda Citigo was named as Car of the Year 2012

At the annual awards held at the Connaught Rooms in London's West End, the Citigo was also named best City Car, the Superb won the Best Family Car and Best Estate Car Awards and the brand took the Driver Power Award for customer satisfaction.

Steve Fowler, Auto Express editor-in-chief, said: "These Car of the Year Awards are proof that Skoda's now a big league car maker – and in many ways it's outshining parent brand VW!"

"The Citigo offers small car buyers the space, quality and comfort normally associated with much larger cars, but at a fraction of the cost. It's simply sensational value-for-money."

Further British success went the way of Land Rover with the Discovery winning a record eighth consecutive award as it was named Best Large SUV.

Last year's Car of the Year, the Range Rover Evoque, was named Best Compact SUV for the second year running, too.

Not to be outdone, Jaguar's C-X16 concept car, previewing the new Jaguar F-Type, won the Auto Express Design Award – voted for by users of AutoExpress.co.uk.

In the Diamond Jubilee year, there was royal success with the inaugural Auto Express Safety Award presented to Prince Michael of Kent in recognition of his work to promote road safety around the world.

Mr Fowler said: "Prince Michael is more often associated with handing out awards than receiving them, through the Prince Michael International Road Safety Awards. But we felt his personal efforts to promote road safety for over 25 years were worthy of an award itself."

HUNDON continue to perform well after promotion to Division One West, with Chris Baldwin leading them to an 11-run win over Haverhill.

Baldwin made 44 and Martyn Farrant and Ed Harper 30 each as Hondon totalled 160 for 7, before holding their opponents to 149 for 5.

But champions Sawston continue to set the pace again, remaining unbeaten after beating Saffron Walden in a low-scoring match. Adam Dellar scored 30 in Sawston's 100 for 6, and Jon Curran took 3 for 3 as Walden were dismissed for 61 in the 16th over.

Abington (147 for 5) beat Weston Colville (109 for 8) in the other match in the division.

Linton are opening up a gap at the top of Division 3W, their latest victory coming against Balsham.

Russell Griggs hit an unbeaten 55 and Josh Hickford added 28 to take Linton to a winning 129 for 4 with two balls to spare, after Evan Gard (pictured) had made 60 not out in Balsham's 125 for 4.

Gard's innings of 36 was the highlight against Sawston II as Balsham posted 109 for 4 and then dismissed their opponents for 89.

Sawston II recovered well, posting an imposing 171 for 5 to beat Ickleton, who replied with just 93.

Helions Bumpstead shaded a close contest against Ashdon. Neil Winter (33), Ben Taylor 32 and Matt Vickery (28) took them to a winning score of 129 for 6, despite Charlie Dawson claiming 3 for 28.

Ashdon totalled 126 for 7, Mark Collins hitting 40, Ben Brown 36 and Andrew Searle taking 4 for 30 for the victors.

Wratting Lions lost their League Cup semi-final to Long Melford, who bowled them out for 74 before reaching 75 for 1 in reply. They face Abington II in the final.

Youngs rues a below-par batting show

JOE Woodley's four-wicket haul turned out to be fruitless for Haverhill, who crashed to a 73-run defeat at Wivenhoe in Division One.

The hosts were in difficulty at 40 for 2 and 160 for 5, but they reached 217 for 6, despite Woodley taking 4 for 49.

Several players got into double figures for Haverhill, but nobody hung around with Anthony Phillips, who top-scored with 33, and they were sent packing for 144.

Haverhill captain Simon Youngs said: "We had our chances to win the game because we had them 40 for 2 and 160 for 5, but we still thought their total was gettable.

"I'm probably more disappointed than the two weeks before when we were well beaten, because although Wivenhoe are a reasonable side, I don't think they're great.

"If someone had gone on and made 60 or 70, it would have made all the difference."

The first team reach the halfway point of their season when they travel to Mildenhall on Saturday.

■ A brutal third-wicket stand between Arvid Gundersen and Liam Savage helped Haverhill II cruise to a seven-wicket win against Ipswich III and go top of Division Six.

Gundersen (53 not out) set the tone for the reply to the visitors' 152 for 9, providing a solid foundation with an opening stand of 32 with Sam Hartshorn (17) and stepping up a gear in a second-wicket partnership with Ben Wilkins (14) which took Haverhill to 74 for 2.

However, the innings took off with Gundersen and Savage in tandem, the latter living up to his surname as he cracked a six and five fours in his 43 which propelled the home side towards their winning score of 152 for 3.

The seconds are at home to Felixstowe Corinthians on Saturday (1pm).

Blofeld to join Lashings stars for club match

Haverhill will host some of the greatest names in cricket when the Lashings XI play their annual match at Manor Road.

Former England Test aces Graeme Hick, Dominic Cork and Devon Malcolm are among the stars in the Lashings 2012 squad, alongside the likes of West Indies greats Gordon Greenidge and Courtney Walsh.

Haverhill have also had confirmation that Test Match Special legend Henry Blofeld will be guest commentator at the match, on Thursday August 9.

Tickets for the sixth annual match, which starts at 2pm, cost £10 for adults and £5 for concessions, with a 20 per cent discount if bought before August 5.

They are available from Haverhill Arts Centre box office on 01440 714140.

For information about sponsorship or tables in the corporate marquee, contact Greg Street on 07885 336080.

■ Dan Webb finished with 4 for 29 as Haverhill III saw off Brockley II in Division Eight West.

He pinned the home side down to 142 - No 5 batsman Jones (72) scoring more than half their runs - helped by Josh Ruthven (3 for 37) as they defended Haverhill's 188 for 9.

However, the visitors' innings petered out after Rob Dovaston (57) and Steve Taylor (44) put them in a powerful position at 149 for 4.

The thirds are at Walsham le Willows on Saturday.

■ Dan Pass scored a half-century as Haverhill scored 208 on a benign track at Mildenhall in their Hunts County Bats Sunday League, Division One game.

However, the home side's second-wicket pair Ben Shepperson (71) and Alex Lack (55) carved apart the Haverhill attack in a 92-run stand which eased their side to a five-wicket victory in the 35th over.

Haverhill are at home to Battisford (1.30pm) on Sunday.

■ Martyn Wilkins scored an unbeaten 79 as the Sunday second team proved too strong for Bardwell in Division Three.

■ Trevor Westley did the damage with the ball as Weston Colville won by 49 runs at Fordham in the Tucker Gardner Cambs & Hunts Premier League, Division Two.

Captain Adie Westley hit 40, but the visitors were dismissed for 133.

If Fordham thought it was a gettable target, their mood would have quickly changed after a disastrous opening to their reply.

Already 8 for 2, Matthew Foulds was run out, before Trevor Westley sent skipper Gavin Harding, Mark Abbott and Mark Hatcher back to the pavilion without adding further runs.

Two more wickets quickly fell to leave the hosts floundering on just 10 for 7 before finally being all out for 84, Westley finishing with 4 for 13.

■ In the Mr Cricket CCA Senior League, Division One, Horseheath were beaten by 100 runs at Fulbourn.

Daniel Kindred's 73 led the hosts to 215 for 7 as David Lowe (3 for 45) was the most productive with the ball for Horseheath.

However, the visitors' reply came to an end on 115 all out.
